

Junior eyes are watching you

A new scheme to encourage community spirit will be run in primary schools throughout Grantham and the surrounding villages.

Grantham and District Neighbourhood Watch Association is launching Junior Eyes.

The chairman of Grantham and District Neighbourhood Watch Association, Helen Bill said: "Neighbourhood Watch is in place in several senior schools across the district, but we haven't done very much at all for primary school age children. These children are the ones who should know about respect, responsibility and caring for others. We need to ensure that they have these values at an early age so that they keep them as they grow."

A very simple presentation has been put together by the association and they will be using this in primary school assemblies.

"This will be an ongoing project and it may take a while to reach every primary school in the district but we hope very much that we'll be helping to mould the youth of today and our communities will eventually reap the benefits," Helen added.
